Children grow rapidly in the first three years of life.

During this time, the brain undergoes its most dramatic development.

Research studies have confirmed that the time invested at this age has the greatest impact on a child's development.

When delays are suspected, early intervention can help families enhance the development of their child.

Referrals for Early Intervention often include:

- Ear infections
- Torticollis/concerns with head shape
- Prematurity
- Cleft lip/palate
- Birth trauma
- Colic
- Feeding challenges
- Speech/language delays
- Motor delays
- Heart conditions
- Diagnosis (e.g. Down Syndrome, Autism, etc.)
- Behavior concerns
- Vision/hearing concerns etc.
